it was a hot sultry day in the last of july one of those eastern summer days when the air presses heavily down on the stifling country fields and in every farmyard the chickens scratch deep on the shady side of buildings looking for cool earth to lie upon panting this weather won t hold long william ford said that morning giving the big bay a friendly slap and fastening the trace as she stepped over we d better get the hay under cover before night there was no sign of a cloud in the bright hot sky but none of the hired men disputed him william ford was a good farmer thrifty and weather wise every field of his 300 acre farm was well cared for yielding richly every year his cattle were fat and sleek his big red barns the best filled in the neighborhood he was not the man to let ten acres of good timothy and clover hay get caught in a summer shower and spoil they put the big hay rack on the wagon threw in the stone water jugs filled with cool water from the well near the kitchen door and drove out to the meadow one imagines them working there lifting great forksful of the clover scented hay tossing them into the rack where on the rising mound the youngest man was kept busy shifting and settling them with his fork grasshoppers whirred up from the winrows of the dried grass when they were disturbed and quails called from the fence corners now and then the men stopped to wipe the sweat from their foreheads and to take long swallows from the water jugs hidden for coolness under a mound of hay then with a look at the sky they took up their forks william ford worked with the others doing a good day s task with the best of them and proud of it he was the owner and they were the hired men but on a michigan farm the measure of a man is the part he takes in man s work in the cities where men work against men let them build up artificial distinctions on the farm the fight is against nature and men stand shoulder to shoulder in it a dark cloud was coming up in the northwest and every man s muscles leaped to the need for getting in the hay suddenly they heard a clang from the great bell hung high on a post in the home dooryard and used only for calling in the men at dinnertime or for some emergency alarm every man stopped it was only 10 o clock then they saw a fluttering apron at the barnyard gate and william ford dropped his fork i ll go get in the hay he called back already running over the stubble in long strides the men stared a minute longer and then turned back to work a little more slowly this time with the boss gone a few minutes later they stopped again to watch him riding out of the home yard and down the road urging the little gray mare to a run going for doc hall they surmised they got in a few more loads of hay before the rain came spattering in big drops on their straw hats and making a pleasant rustling on the thirsty meadows then they climbed into the half filled rack and drove down to the big barn they sat idly there in the dimness watching through the wide doors the gray slant of the rain the doctor had come one of the men unhitched his horse and led it into a stall while another pulled the light cart under the shed dinner time came and passed there was no call from the house and they did not go in once in a while they laughed nervously and remarked that it was a shame they did not save the last three loads of hay good hay too ran a full four tons to the acre about 2 o clock in the afternoon the rain changed to a light drizzle and the clouds broke later william ford came out of the house and crossed the sippy yard he was grinning a little it was all right he said a boy i believe they had up a jug of sweet cider from the cellar in honor of the occasion i know that when they apologetically mentioned the spoiled hay he laughed heartily and asked what they supposed he cared about the hay what re you going to call him ford one of the men asked him as they stood around the cider jug wiping their lips on the backs of their hands
